Officer Training

At a retreat or lock-in, (if no retreat or lock-in, just spend an afternoon to go out to lunch, etc.) get all of the executive and class officers together. Split into groups according to office. The executive officers lead the training for each office: go through duties, methods, useful tips, etc. If desired, each officer can organize their binder with all papers, needed forms, etc. This is especially useful for new officers and freshmen. Everyone starts on the same page.
